CHINA-LEADERSHIP: CHINESE PRESIDENT XI JINPING PRESIDED OVER POLITBURO MEETING ON DISCIPLINE INSPECTION IN BEIJING ON MARCH 28

People's Daily (March 30) reported that Chinese President Xi Jinping presided over the Politburo's meeting on March 29, to review a comprehensive report on the second round of disciplinary inspection missions of the CCP's 20th CC. The meeting noted that the two rounds of disciplinary inspection missions carried out by the CCP CC since the 20th Party Congress had covered all centrally-administered enterprises. It said Party-building work in centrally-administered enterprises and relevant departments had been strengthened, with new achievements in terms of the Party's full and rigorous self-governance. The Politburo stressed the "need to use the inspections and rectifications as powerful measures to promote high-quality development and the Party's full and rigorous self-governance" and underscored "strengthening supervision over rectification of problems identified in the inspection, and establishing an accountability system for rectifying problems". The Politburo meeting reiterated that "state-owned enterprises (SOEs) are important material and political foundation of socialism with Chinese characteristics, and they should uphold and strengthen Party leadership, and guard against and defuse risks to safeguard high-quality development". It said "SOEs should further advance the exercise of full and rigorous Party self-governance, remain tough in cracking down on corruption at all times, and resolutely remove the conditions for corruption". Other matters were also deliberated at the meeting.

(Comment: This Politburo meeting has confirmed the important position of SoEs in China's economy and politics. It implied also that discipline inspection, or anti-corruption, work would be made more stringent.)

Yin Hejun, claimed "Xi Jinping's important exposition on new productivity has profoundly revealed the intrinsic relationship between technological innovation, industrial upgrading and high-quality development. It is an innovation and development of Marxist productivity theory and deepens the understanding of the regularity of technological innovation in promoting the development of productivity". He said to develop new productive forces, it is essential to "grasp the "source of living water" of scientific and technological innovation, accelerate future technological breakthroughs, and build first-mover advantages in future industries. He said it is important to first "strengthen research and judgment on trends in cutting-edge technologies and disruptive technologies. Pay close attention to the breakthrough directions and latest trends in technological frontiers such as integrated circuits, artificial intelligence, quantum technology, biotechnology, and advanced energy, strengthen the analysis of transformative and emerging trends in science and technology." He said, in conclusion, that "in accordance with the deployment of the Party Central Committee, the Ministry of Science and Technology will further deepen the reform of the science and technology system."

CHINA-S&T: SASAC LEADERSHIP WANTS CENTRAL SOES TO SPEND MORE ON INNOVATION AND FUNDAMENTAL TECHNOLOGIES

A meeting of the leadership of the State-owned Assets Supervision and Administration Commission (SASAC), which controls the State-owned Enterprises (SoEs), in Beijing on March 29 indicated it wants SoEs to spend more on innovation. It called for reforms to evaluate SOE investments in innovative and fundamental technologies over a medium-to-long-term – rather than short-term – horizon, and tweak SOE key performance indicators to guide investments toward developing crucial technologies and resolving supply chain bottlenecks, in line with national strategic and industrial upgrading objectives. Because of the structural slowdown in growth and US-led restrictions on critical technologies, Beijing is relying increasingly on central SOEs to drive technological innovation and industrial upgrading. In 2023, central SOEs' combined investments in strategic emerging industries (SEI) surged by 45.3% y/y, reaching RMB 2.18 trillion.

CHINA-EDUCATION: SIXTH TONE SAYS THERE IS AN EXPLOSION OF 'SCHOLAR STUDY TOURS' IN CHINA

The People's Daily subsidiary publication Sixth Tone (March 28) published a report on the growing popularity of Xueren Youxue or "Scholar Study Tours". Quoting industry insiders it said the pay of the guides is good and in addition to travel expenses, even ordinary academics earn anywhere from 5,000 to 6,000 yuan a day ($700 to $800). The paper added that it is not just the money and some of the most sought-after guides, who are "one-time public intellectuals" or former professors, have largely withdrawn from the public sphere in recent years and the tours offer them a chance to earn a substantial sum of money, interact with fans and other like-minded people in safe, controlled settings and see the world.

CHINA-ECONOMY: FINANCE MINISTRY ISSUES NOTICE TO ALL LEVELS OF GOVERNMENT TO LIVE FRUGALLY

The state-owned CCTV (March 28) telecast a notice issued by China's Ministry of Finance on March 27, directing central departments and local finance departments to 'get accustomed to living frugally in party and government organs for strengthening budget constraints. It urged all regions and departments to live frugally without relaxation. It said when party and government organs spend one less penny, more funds can be allocated to people's livelihoods. The CCTV report recalled that in recent years, the finance departments have strictly implemented the requirement of living frugally. In 2023, the budget for "three public expenses" at the central level was reduced by 20% compared to the pre-epidemic year of 2019; expenditures in key areas such as education funded by various levels of finance increased by 25.5% compared to 2019. To implement getting used to living frugally, the Ministry of Finance has clearly defined multiple measures this time. The notice emphasised the strict strengthening of the management of "three public expenses" and recommended stringent quotas. It stipulated that administrative and public institutions are not allowed to use non-budgetary funds to arrange for official overseas expenses; it is strictly forbidden to lease luxury cars above standard for official use vehicles, reducing the operation and maintenance costs of vehicles; and it is strictly prohibited to incur excessive expenses for official receptions by falsely reporting the number of people or increasing the number of accompanying personnel in violation of regulations. It also emphasised that central departments should take the lead in significantly reducing activities such as forums, festivals, and exhibitions. Meetings, training, and other official activities should prioritize the use of internal venues such as meeting rooms and auditoriums, and encourage the use of online methods such as video, telephone, and the internet to conduct official activities. The notice clearly stated that budget constraints and supervision will be made more stringent. Further budget reviews will be conducted to curb problems such as high estimation and false claims in project applications; online monitoring will be intensified for irregular and abnormal expenditure and impulsive spending behaviour, and daily checks will be conducted for discovered doubts; and regular financial fund clean-up will be carried out.

The notice also required strict expenditure management, ensuring the bottom line of the "three assurances", emphasizing the establishment of a comprehensive hierarchical responsibility system for the bottom line of the "three assurances" at the grassroots level, and requiring all regions to adhere to prioritise stable financial resources for the "three assurances". It said budget performance management should be stricter and there should be pre-evaluation of major policies and projects, and tighter management of performance targets. Serious financial discipline will be enforced, and strict investigation and punishment of violations of financial discipline will be enforced, and maintaining a high-pressure situation of financial supervision. Relevant officials of the Ministry of Finance stated that the Ministry of Finance will resolutely implement the requirement of getting used to living frugally in party and government organs in the next step. The central finance will take the lead in fulfilling its responsibilities, continuously improve institutional measures, make living frugally a conscious principle for budget arrangements and execution, achieve "generous spending for major matters and thriftiness for minor matters" and create a good atmosphere of long-term frugality.

CHINA-ECONOMY: SOUTHERN WEEKLY NOTED CHINESE PRESIDENT XI JINPING'S STRESS ON BUSINESS ENVIRONMENT IN MEETINGS WITH FOREIGN LEADERS AND DELEGATIONS

China's Southern Weekly (March 29) observed that on March 27, Chinese President Xi Jinping met representatives of the U.S. business community and strategic academia, Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte, and Sri Lankan Prime Minister Gunawardena respectively and that in all three meetings, President Xi Jinping mentioned the topic of business environment. Clarifying the importance of the business environment, the Southern Weekly described the business environment "as the soil for the survival and development of enterprises" and said that "when choosing investment locations, business leaders would rather trade higher land and labour costs for a better business environment than go to areas with a relatively lagging business environment". It emphasised that China believed in economic globalisation.

CHINA-PLA: CHINA'S SOUTH CHINA SEA STRATEGIC SITUATION PROBING INITIATIVE ISSUES REPORT ON U.S. ACTIVITIES IN SOUTH CHINA SEA AND AROUND CHINA

The South China Sea Strategic Situation Probing Initiative (SCSPI) published 'An Incomplete Report on US Military Activities in the South China Sea in 2023' on March 21. Giving a press briefing at the Beijing Post & Telecom Conference Center on March 22, SCSPI Director Hu Bo, Vice Director 雷筱璐 Lei Xiaolu, Professor of China Institute of Boundary and Ocean Studies (CIBOS), Wuhan University, Vice Director 闫岩 Yan Yan, Director of the Research Center of Oceans Law and Policy in the National Institute for the South China Sea Studies, and Dr. 陈永 Chen Yong, Assistant Research Fellow at the Institute of International Relations, Shanghai Academy of Social Sciences, answered questions from the media. The main points in the report are: In 2023, the US deployed three Carrier Strike Groups (CSGs), namely USS Nimitz (CVN-68), USS Ronald Reagan (CVN-76), and USS Carl Vinson (CVN-70), for a total of six activities accessing the South China Sea. The duration of activities increased, with a preference for entering and exiting through the Bashi Channel; In 2023, the US also successively dispatched two Amphibious Ready Groups (ARGs), USS Makin Island and USS America, for activities in the South China Sea. Additionally, USS America, USS Makin Island and the 13th MEU conducted integrated operations in the Western Pacific, demonstrating the capability to implement operational concepts such as “Expeditionary Advanced Base Operations” (EABO); Also in 2023, the US Navy deployed at least 11 nuclear attack submarines plus two ballistic nuclear missile submarines for strategic cruise missions in the Western Pacific including the South China Sea; in addition the US Air Force conducted 30 B-52H or B-1B bomber sorties in the Western Pacific in total. The bombers, though deployed mainly at Andersen Air Force Base in Guam also operated from multiple allied and partner countries’ airports; In 2023, the US military conducted around 1,000 sorties in various types of large reconnaissance aircraft from bases such as Kadena in Okinawa, Osan in South Korea, Andersen in Guam, and Clark in the Philippines for reconnaissance missions in the South China Sea and, of them, about 100 sorties approached the airspace near the Chinese mainland and Hainan Island, most being within 30 nautical miles of the baseline of the territorial sea. The US reconnaissance aircraft frequently disrupted the normal exercises and drills of the PLA and led to close encounters with Chinese alert forces; In 2023, US reconnaissance ships such as ocean surveillance ships and oceanographic survey ships proceeded with more targeted routine operations in the South China Sea and kept intensified reconnaissance in the triangular area between the Paracel Islands, Spratly Islands, and the Bashi Channel, as well as the east and west lanes in the South China Sea, accumulating a total of 314 ship-days. Babuyan Channel, Verde Island Passage and Mindoro Strait, as frequently used maritime passages by US CSGs in recent years, have also seen intensive reconnaissance operations by US oceanographic survey ships; there was an increased frequency of the US military's island-intrusive FONOPs in the South China Sea, rising to six times, in 2023; Throughout 2023, US warships transited the Taiwan Strait six times, suggesting a significant decrease compared to previous years, while there was a substantial increase in the frequency of the USN P-8A aircraft flyover. On June 21, the USCG Stratton transited the Taiwan Strait, which is the first solo transit of the Taiwan Strait by a US Coast Guard vessel after 2019; the report referred to the US' Joint Operations with the Philippine, Japan, Australia; in 2023, the US military conducted a total of 107 large-scale exercises and drills in the South China Sea and its surrounding areas, an increase in both quantity and scale compared to 2022.

The Ministry of External Affairs added that "In the interim, both sides agreed to maintain regular contact through diplomatic and military channels and on the need to uphold peace and tranquillity on the ground in the border areas in accordance with existing bilateral agreements and protocols".

CHINA-INDIA: ARTICLE ON WEIBO SUGGESTS CHINA'S OPPOSITION TO INDIA GETTING A SEAT ON UNSC

A post in Weibo (March 27) disclosed that the issue of India's application to become a permanent member of the United Nations Security Council has sparked heated discussions in Beijing. It said Chinese Foreign Minister, Wang Yi, met the two co-chairs of the 78th session of the United Nations General Assembly's intergovernmental negotiations on Security Council reform, Mr. Baniayi, the Permanent Representative of Kuwait to the United Nations, and Mr. Matzek of Austria. Wang Yi expressed China's position on the issue of Security Council reform. He emphatically stated that China fully supports the reform of the Security Council, emphasizing the importance of enhancing the representation and voice of developing and small countries in the Security Council. He stressed the need to allow more countries to participate in the decision-making process and ensure that all members of the United Nations family can benefit from the reform. At the same time, "he cleverly conveyed a message to India, which has been eager for a permanent seat: the key lies in promoting equal participation of all countries in global decision-making. India has long coveted a permanent seat on the Security Council and there seems to be a new change in the situation this year". Apart from China, the four traditional permanent members of the Security Council, namely the United States, Russia, the United Kingdom, and France, all seem to be inclined to support India. "At the G20 summit, the U.S. and Russia reached a rare consensus on this issue and were busy lobbying other member states. Subsequently, the UK and France followed the footsteps of the United States and extended an olive branch to India. Although India has now gained support from the four major powers, whether it can truly occupy the seat of a permanent member still depends on China's attitude. During talks between President Biden and Indian Prime Minister Modi, President Biden expressed support for UN Security Council reform and agreed to India's accession to permanent membership. However, although the United States has previously expressed support for India's accession, it has also warned India not to consider using the veto". The article said in order to increase its chances of accession, India has made efforts over the years. It has not only strengthened its relations with other major powers but also actively participated in international peacekeeping missions. "Additionally, India has proposed many plans in the discussions on Security Council reform that cater to its own interests. Meanwhile, the Indian media has also been vigorously promoting the atmosphere of public opinion that "India is qualified to be a permanent member." Looking back over the past decade, India has made six attempts to become a permanent member, but has failed each time. Now, with the United States and Russia showing friendly gestures one after another, India seems to see a glimmer of hope. However, during talks between Foreign Minister Wang Yi and senior UN officials and representatives of various countries, it was explicitly stated that the core goal of Security Council reform is to increase the voice and influence of developing countries and small countries in decision-making, striving to achieve a broader consensus. This is encouragement to small and medium-sized countries like Kuwait and Austria, as well as a signal to India - China hopes to see a Security Council where every country can participate equally in decision-making, reducing privileges and enhancing fairness. "At the same time, despite demonstrating a certain level of strength and influence internationally, India still faces many thorny issues domestically, such as severe class divisions, entrenched caste systems, human rights issues that need improvement, a lagging education system, insufficient infrastructure development, and the need to strengthen political stability. Even the United States, which has long supported India's accession, has been frank about its existing problems. Therefore, for India to truly cross the threshold of becoming a permanent member, it not only needs understanding and support from the international community, especially the five permanent members of the Security Council but also needs to solidify its basic skills in its own backyard, comprehensively enhance its national comprehensive strength and social management level and demonstrate the responsibility and courage of a world power. At present, India's path to its seventh application for permanent membership seems clearer than ever before, after all, it has won explicit support from the United States and Russia. However, as one of the existing permanent members of the Security Council, China has always maintained a cautious attitude towards the issue of new permanent members. It particularly emphasizes the contributions and roles of candidate countries in global governance. From China's perspective, the primary task in the UN reform process is to uphold the authority of the United Nations, advocate multilateralism, actively promote Security Council reform towards a more just and reasonable direction, and ensure that the voice of each member country is fully respected and responded to. For India, achieving the dream of permanent membership requires not only external assistance but also the tempering of internal strength and the enhancement of international image!"

CHINA-INDIA: WEIBO POST QUOTES INDIAN DEFENCE MINISTER SAYING PEOPLE OF POK WANT MERGER WITH INDIA AND INDIA WILL RESPOND TO ANY THREATS FROM CHINA

A post (March 27) on Weibo referred to Indian Defense Minister Rajnath Singh's statement during an interview that the people of Pakistan-Occupied Kashmir "voluntarily seek to merge with India," and he is "confident" about this prospect. In February, political activist Amjad Ayub Mirza criticized the elections in Pakistan-Occupied Kashmir, stating that "the people of Pakistan-Occupied Kashmir have had enough of Pakistan and are demanding integration with India." Singh also asserted that "India will not attack any country, nor has it occupied an inch of other's territory; Kashmir has always been a part of India." Additionally, regarding the India-China border issue, Singh emphasized that India will actively respond to any "threats" from China, while also stating that "India maintains good relations with all its neighbouring countries."

CHINA-BHUTAN: CHINESE ACADEMIC APPREHENDS INDIAN PRIME MINISTER'S VISIT TO BHUTAN WILL ADVERSELY IMPACT ON CHINA-BHUTAN BORDER TALKS

Referring to the award of Order of the Druk Gyalpo, or Dragon King, to Prime Minister Narendra Modi during his visit to Bhutan on March 22 from Bhutanese king and the newly appointed Bhutanese Prime Minister Tshering Tobgay's visit to New Delhi, a week earlier, Lin Minwang, Deputy Director of the Centre for South Asian Studies at Fudan University in Shanghai, said these developments could have "obvious and direct" impact on Chinese-Bhutan border talks. The South China Morning Post (March 29) quoted him saying "We have seen some momentum since 2020 and the negotiations have achieved significant progress." "The two sides are (a)waiting for an opportunity of breakthrough but now I think there could be some changes".

CHINA-PAKISTAN: LENGTHY BAIJIAHAO ARTICLE ACCUSES INDIA'S R&AW OF ATTACKS ON CPEC AND CHINESE NATIONALS IN PAKISTAN

A lengthy article in Baijiahao (March 27) alleged that "According to the Pakistani investigation, this was a suicide attack, with the attacker ramming a car filled with explosives into a bus convoy carrying Chinese nationals. Pakistan's Foreign Minister Qureshi stated that the Research and Analysis Wing (RAW) of India and the subsequently ousted Afghan National Security Agency were the masterminds behind it, and it was specifically carried out by the Swat branch of the Pakistani Taliban (known as 'TTP'). It said " the Research and Analysis Wing of India was the mastermind behind two incidents last year. One was the assassination attempt against the Canadian Sikh religious leader in June last year. It later led to a serious diplomatic crisis between Canada and India! Another incident was in November last year, when the US Department of Justice said that Indian agents went to New York to assassinate Sikh separatist leader Gurpatwant Singh Pannun, but they were caught red-handed by the US authorities. Of course, faced with irrefutable evidence, the Indian side shamelessly denied it as usual." Referring to the attacks on Chinese personnel by the Balochistan Liberation Army (BLA) in May 2017, November 2018, May 2019, August 2021 and April 2022, it said the Pakistani government has repeatedly stated that BLA and other extremist organizations are colluding with third-country forces to incite them to attack Chinese targets and provide military and intelligence support. It identified the third countries as the United States and India! It added that the US NGO “Friends of Balochistan” and Baloch exiles in Europe have opposed the CPEC. It claimed that the leader of the “Baloch Nationalist Army,” who surrendered to the Pakistani government, revealed that India had been secretly supporting terrorist activities in Balochistan Province and providing funds to separatist forces in Balochistan Province. It said the US and India want to "deal with Pakistan and the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor, disrupt the construction of the “Belt and Road” initiative, block China’s access to the Indian Ocean, and prevent China from saving transportation costs and developing overseas. At the same time, the development and growth of Pakistan pose a threat to their Asia-Pacific strategy and India’s “South Asian hegemony” status. Therefore, regardless of the fact that terrorism is the enemy of all mankind, the US and India are deliberately destroying the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor." It listed the purpose of this attack as:

1. Pressure the Pakistani government to demand that it not be so harsh on terrorist organizations.
2. Expand influence and strengthen the power of extremist organizations.
3. This hydropower station is equivalent to Pakistan’s “Three Gorges Dam.” After completion, it will generate approximately 12 billion kWh of electricity annually. By obstructing the construction of the dam, the Pakistani government will not obtain economic benefits and improve people’s livelihoods, thus reducing the breeding ground for terrorism.
4. Disrupt the normal progress of Sino-Pakistani.

CHINA-PAKISTAN: CHINESE WORKERS ON THREE HYDROPOWER PROJECTS OF CPEC STOP WORKING AFTER RECENT TERRORIST ATTACKS

Pakistan's Daily Excelsior (March 29) disclosed that two more Chinese companies have stopped work on hydropower projects three days after five Chinese nationals were killed in a suicide attack in Pakistan’s restive Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province. It said after the Tarbela project, the Chinese companies have now suspended civil work at the Dasu and Diamer-Bhasha dams due to security concerns and about 1,000 Chinese engineers working on both the projects have stopped operations. The local staff for both the projects has been directed to stay home till further orders, An official working on the Dasu dam project confirmed that the Chinese company stopped work and local staff was asked to stay at home. The project employed around 741 Chinese and 6,000 locals. Asim Rauf, General Manager of the 4,800 MW Diamer-Bhasha Dam (DBD) Nazakat Hussain also confirmed that the Chinese company had stopped work and said around 500 Chinese nationals were engaged in DBD but the Frontier Works Organisation staff, of about 6,000 locals, continues to work. However, he said, 250 Chinese engineers are still working on the Mohmand Dam in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, adding “The Chinese have shown satisfaction over the security situation in the project area, and they are working on the site.”

(Comment: During his 9-day visit Shrestha also met the Vice Minister of the CCP CC ILD Sun Haiyan, Party Secretary of Chingqing Yuan Jiajun, and the Governor of Sichuan Huang Qiang. He also discussed the Trans-Himalayan Multi Dimensional Connectivity Network (THMDCN) to be developed under the BRI. The Kathmandu Post (April 1) published a detailed interview with Shrestha.)

CHINA-NEPAL: AMID INCREASING CHINESE PRESSURE ON NEPAL'S GOVERNMENT TIBETANS IN NEPAL STAGE NO PROTEST TO MARK 'SERFS EMANCIPATION DAY'

A reliable report from Kathmandu said in Nepal there were no events, protests or demonstrations held by Tibetans in observation of Serfs' Emancipation Day. It added that many of the Tibetans living in Nepal lacked information about this day. Stating that every year the sentiment with which Tibetans observe these events to show their nationalism and sense of patriotism seem to be fading, it noted that the situation has changed since the pressure from Chinese embassy keeps increasing to remind the Nepalese government to stick to the 'One China Policy'. Therefore, Tibetans are restricted from even staging a peaceful demonstration to show their solidarity spirit in Nepal during these important events. There were no policemen and armed forces deployed in Tibetan populated areas in Kathmandu and Pokhara. But messengers in plain clothes, numbering over 100 in Boudha and about 15 in Swoyambhu were seen keeping vigilance on the day's event. There were no cases of detention or arrest of Tibetans in Nepal on March 28.

CHINA-US: CHINESE PRESIDENT XI JINPING AND U.S. PRESIDENT JOE BIDEN HAVE 2-HOUR LONG TELEPHONE CONVERSATION ON APRIL 2

During the 2 hour-long telephone conversation (April 2) between Chinese President Xi Jinping and US President Joe Biden, Xinhua said Chinese President "Xi Jinping stressed that the Taiwan issue is the first insurmountable red line in China-U.S. relations. We will not sit idly by in the face of separatist activities by "Taiwan independence" forces and external indulgence and support. We hope the U.S. side will implement President Biden's positive stance of not supporting "Taiwan independence" into actions. The U.S. has continuously imposed trade and technology suppression measures against China, and the list of sanctioned Chinese companies is growing longer. This is not "de-risking" but creating risks. If the U.S. side is willing to carry out mutually beneficial cooperation and share the dividends of China's development, China's door is always open; if the U.S. side insists on suppressing China's high-tech development and depriving China of its legitimate right to development, we will not stand by." The US readout said Biden "raised concerns over the PRC's support for Russia's defense industrial base", which has been interpreted as a clear sign of the growing concern that while not providing weapons directly to Russia the PRC is playing a key role in keeping Russia's defense industrial base operating. The Wall Street Journal (April 2) said it was a warning" to China.

ii) According to Xinhua, Xi Jinping addressed US-China relations directly. He said, "The China-U.S. relationship is beginning to stabilize...[but] the negative factors of the relationship have also been growing." He then outlined three principles to guide China-US relations in 2024: (i) Peace must be valued to prevent conflict and confrontation.; (ii) Stability must be prioritized.; and (iii) Credibility must be upheld, and commitments must be acted upon.

CHINA-US: U.S. TREASURY SECRETARY JANET YELLEN STARTED VISIT TO CHINA ON APRIL 4 -- OTHER U.S. OFFICIALS TO INTERACT WITH CHINESE COUNTERPARTS THIS MONTH

i) U.S. Treasury Secretary Yellen arrived in Guangzhou on April 4 at the start of her visit (April 4-9) to China. According to the US readout she will meet Chinese Premier Li Qiang, Vice Premier He Lifeng and former Vice Premier Liu He, and she will among other things underscore the "global economic consequences of Chinese industrial overcapacity".

A Xinhua commentary (April 2) just prior to Yellen's visit said "while it is just basic economics that surplus products naturally seek out markets elsewhere once domestic demand is met, and Western nations have been doing that for centuries, when it comes to China, it becomes an "overcapacity problem" threatening the world...This new variant of "China threat" theory is just a pretext for certain Western countries to poison the environment for China's domestic development and international cooperation and take more protectionist measures for their own industries."

ii) U.S. Secretary of State Blinken may visit by the end of the month, and US Secretary of Defense Austin is likely to soon have a call with Chinese Minister of Defense Dong Jun.

CHINA-US: XINHUA COMMENTARY URGES TIGHTENED BONDS BETWEEN THE PEOPLE OF U.S. AND CHINA

The People's Daily (March 31) published the third Xinhua commentary in a series captioned 'Tightening the bonds between people and public opinion - Promoting the sustained, stable and healthy development of China-U.S. relations', which referring to Xi Jinping's recent meeting with US business leaders, academics and strategists said "The past was written by the people, and the future must be created by the people". It urged people from all walks of life to have more contacts and exchanges, enhance trust, eliminate all kinds of interference, and inject more stability into the world. It ended with the plea that "The more difficulties Sino-US relations encounter, the more necessary it is to tighten the bonds between the people and enhance people-to-people communication".

CHINA-NETHERLANDS: CHINESE PRESIDENT XI JINPING WARNS NETHERLANDS PRIME MINISTER RUTTE AGAINST CREATING TECH BARRIERS

The South China Morning Post and Politico (March 28) quoting sources said that during their meeting (March 24) Chinese President Xi Jinping warned Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte against creating "tech barriers," following the Dutch decision to impose export controls on microchips gear. Xinhua said he told Rutte that "Artificially erecting tech barriers, and severing industries chains and supply chains, would only lead to division and rivalry. No forces could stop the pace of China's technological development and progress." He also offered to import more from the Netherlands and to ramp up cooperation in areas such as artificial intelligence. Rutte is visiting China with the country's Foreign Trade minister, Geoffrey van Leeuwen.
